

Michelle Obama Visits Look Good...Feel Better Program at UK Cancer Center

On April 1, First Lady Michelle Obama accompanied Sarah Brown, wife of British Prime Minister Gordon Brown, to a Look Good...Feel Better® (LGFB) program at Maggie's Cancer Center in London. The women visited with two cancer patients enrolled in the program. Maggie's Cancer Center is a place where cancer patients and their families can gather to receive support, comfort and practical advice. Sarah Brown is the Patron of Maggie's and opened the center last April. More than 12,000 people have received care there since then.

Read more about the First Lady's visit at blogs.ABCNews.com, MSNBC.com and USAToday.com.

Look Good...Feel Better, is a nationwide public service program, established by the Personal Care Products Council Foundation, that helps women, men and teens cope with appearance-related side effects of cancer treatment. The program originated in the United States in 1989, and is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year. Look Good...Feel better is made possible through a collaboration of the Personal Care Products Council Foundation, the American Cancer Society and the National Cosmetology Association.

For more information, contact Lauren Wasserman at lauren.wasserman@ketchum.com or (202) 835-7269, or visit www.lookgoodfeelbetter.org.

1101 17th STREET, NW
SUITE 300
WASHINGTON, DC 20036-4702
202-331-1770
FAX 202-331-7593
www.lookgoodfeelbetter.org

